RIVERSIDE PROPERTY.

A portion of this valuable property is now offered for sale at prices and on terms very moderate and easy, when regard is had to the prevailing prices of realty in and about this city.

This is the most elevated and picturesque tract now left intact from the centre of the city, and is, or will be, as soon as the present definite plans are realized, the most accessible and desirable suburb of Chicago. With the C. B. & Q., with its frequent trains, and a new independent line direct to the heart of the city, to be speedily built, this property will have the best city communication of any outlying town. Property will here more SURELY and RAPIDLY advance than within the city, exempt, as it will be, from the exorbitant and annoying system of postal and general tax levies, which absorb a large percentage of the income from city property.

Parties wishing to secure a country residence, with healthy and delightful surroundings, or with the view of a good and sure investment, should view this property before investing elsewhere.

For information, maps, plats, &c., call on or address C. B. KING or McCLURE & MILLS, 184 Washington-st.

RIVERSIDE HOTEL.

NEW HOTEL
AT RIVERSIDE.

An elegantly appointed Hotel from designs prepared by W. L. B. JENNEY, Esq., is in progress of construction at Riverside, to be completed on or before July 1. It is so arranged that—with the REFECTORY for culinary and dining purposes, and the PAVILION, for billiards and lounging, both 200 feet removed from this main building, though connected by a covered verandah—it will afford families the quiet and comfort so much desired, and nowhere else attainable.

The rooms are all large, light, and well ventilated. 12 trains each way per day between Chicago and Riverside—transportation, $70 per quarter, and family tickets at 14c. per ride; 11 miles of splendid drives; good facilities for boating, fishing, billiards, &c., affording business men recreation in the society of their families without interfering with business.

Rooms for the season may now be engaged from the plans, which may be seen at my office, 23 Washington-st. Occupation to be given July 1 next.

FRIDAY, MAY 26, 1871.

THE LEGISLATURE.

The first duty of the members of the Illinois Legislature, as stated by the Governor in his Message, is to pass the appropriation bills. And this seems to be the only important work which the Legislature will do. It is true that it may do many other things, but it will not be required to do them until that duty is performed. The Governor says: "The Legislature is entitled to the undivided attention of the Executive during the remainder of the session, and ought to be assisted by him in every proper way." And, of course, the Legislature will be expected to adjourn as soon as the appropriations are made. Any other course would be unjust to the Governor, and to the people whom he represents.

It is unfortunately needful to assert the obvious truth that the Legislature is not in session for the purpose of promoting the political fortunes of the members, or of any party. It is not there to play politics, but to do the business of the State. If there is any member in the House who is there for the purpose of playing politics, he ought to be ashamed of himself, and he ought to be rebuked by his colleagues. The Legislature has no time to waste with such other in useful legislation. Let the bills, House appropriation be passed or rejected as quickly as the necessary forms can be complied with. Every day's adjournment is the saving of a day's expense. Every day's session will impose a day's expense. Every day's session will impose a day's expense. Every day's session will impose a day's expense.

PROTECTION IN FINE.

The Boston Advertiser, while admitting that it cannot see why the British Provinces should object to our levying duties, says that "the government of the United States is practically a free-trade government." It says that its town of Fryeburg, in Maine, is "on the line of the Grand Trunk Railway, and is a thriving place, with a considerable trade in lumber, and a manufacture of shooks, but not enough to keep the mills busy." There is nothing in the treaty to compensate them for the loss of protection. Nobody speaks with more contempt of Canadian Manufactures, and by those of the provinces, though governed by widely-differing interests, is equally condemned in both cases. What are the facts? The fisheries are valuable in their supply, but, as some extent, fresh; the market for their fisheries does not extend beyond this continent. Fish are to be found the world over, but the fish of the Atlantic coast are not to be found in all that world. The consumption of salted fish depends greatly upon its cost. Mackerel visits at Chicago as high as last fall higher than within a year; consequently, therefore but a limited number of people can afford to buy it. What it would have if the fish could be had at the present price. The fisheries are worked by two nationalities. The Provincial fishermen have the right of entry into our ports, where they can buy bait, ice, and other supplies, and can tranship their fish in bond. The American fishermen have no such privileges. They must go to the fishing-grounds and back without touching at any port. They will find the cost of living reduced 50 per cent, which they will find to be a great boon that a party tax on fish and salt.

WHAT NEXT!

The liberal portions of Paris—the only respectable ones two-thirds of the city—are in a state of terror. The only doubt now is whether the city itself is not being completely destroyed. The only doubt now is whether the city itself is not being completely destroyed. The only doubt now is whether the city itself is not being completely destroyed

ARKANSAS.

The Hot Sulphur Springs.

Their Character and Curative Properties.

Travelling in Arkansas.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

Hot Springs, May 16.

I reached here a few days since, after two of the most fatiguing expeditions it has ever my misfortune to go through. The railroad from Memphis to Little Rock, on which I came, is commonly considered a day's journey in the journey is the journey about two days, but the ride is attended with much danger and great anxiety, at the risk of being buried in a swamp, through which the road runs in a very poor. The road is not finished, though running, and the rails are not all down. The best laid and best watched portions of the road are those in the vicinity of Memphis, and the rest is in a very poor condition. The passengers through took a country at that between the Mississippi and White rivers are constructed a road by wagoning, the major part of the land being covered with water; but there was money in it, and those having charge were not to be outwitted by swamps and other natural obstructions. The road is to put for from completion, and are at work on it, and in a year or two it will be as good a railroad as can be found anywhere. Forty miles of it are through cypress swamps, through which a road has been made, at an outlay not exceeded by that of any road in the country. The bridges over the Cache and Bayou Meto are fearful, for the latter is a mile wide, and the water and mud make a cold, disagreeable passage. The bridge over the Cache is 1,200 feet long, and is built on piles driven into the mud, and is the most substantial piece of work on the road. The bridge over Bayou Meto is 1,600 feet long, and is built in the same manner, but not so substantial.

Having passed the bluff and swamps to Devil's Elbow, a station on the Little Rock, Mississippi River & Texas Railroad, I was met by Mr. Dexter, the agent of the Hot Springs Railroad, who had been waiting for me for two days. The latter road is a branch of the former, and runs from Gurdon, a station on the latter road, to the Springs, a distance of 22 miles. It is a narrow-gauge road, and was built by Mr. Dexter, who is also the owner of the Hot Springs Hotel, the largest in the State, and the only one which is kept open the year round. Mr. Dexter is a gentleman of wealth and enterprise, and his efforts to make the Springs a place of resort for invalids from all parts of the country are worthy of success. The hotel is a large, commodious building, and is kept in first-class style. The table is supplied with the best the market affords, and the rooms are large and well ventilated. The charges are $3 per day, or $15 per week, which is very reasonable for the accommodations furnished. The hotel will be open for the reception of guests on the 1st of June, and will probably be filled to its utmost capacity during the season. Before the close of the present year it is expected that the Hot Springs Railroad will be completed to Fort Smith, on the Arkansas River, and the Springs will be reached by a railroad from Little Rock to Fort Smith. The latter road is now completed to Pine Bluff, 40 miles from Little Rock, and the grading is finished to Arkadelphia, 60 miles from Little Rock. The bridge over the Arkansas River at Little Rock is nearly completed, and the cars will probably be running to Pine Bluff by the 1st of June. The bridge over the Arkansas River at Pine Bluff is also nearly completed, and the cars will probably be running to Arkadelphia by the 1st of July. The bridge over the Washita River at Arkadelphia is also nearly completed, and the cars will probably be running to Hot Springs by the 1st of August. The bridge over the Washita River at Arkadelphia is also nearly completed, and the cars will probably be running to Hot Springs by the 1st of August.

Traditionary narratives regarding these springs have been in circulation for many years, and for many years, although the number of persons who visited them was small, and the accommodations for the sick were very poor. Patients were carried in wagons, on litters, and on horseback, and the journey was made by the Indians, who used the waters for the cure of disease. Gradually the fame of the springs spread, and the number of visitors increased, and the accommodations were improved, until the present year, when the Hot Springs Railroad will be completed to the springs, and the accommodations will be of the best.

Hot Springs is situated in a valley, surrounded by mountains, and is a very pleasant place. The climate is delightful, and the scenery is beautiful. The springs are situated in the valley, and are easily accessible. The water is very pure, and is said to be very beneficial to those who drink it. The springs are also used for bathing, and the water is very warm, and is said to be very beneficial to those who bathe in it

THE LEGISLATURE.

Heated Senate Debate on the Question of the Necessity for the Session.

Introduction of the State House, Eminent Domain and North Side Park Bills.

Adoption by the House of Its Old Rules, with Amendments.

The Penitentiary Said to be Self-Sustaining.

Committee Report that no Subjects Be Considered Save Those Named in the Message.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 25.—The Senate was called to order at 10 o'clock, Lieut.-Gov. Hamilton in the chair.

Mr. [illegible] moved that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill to provide for the location of the State House.

Mr. [illegible] moved to amend by striking out the enacting clause.

Mr. [illegible] said that he was opposed to the bill, and to the amendment. He was opposed to the bill because it was unconstitutional. The Constitution of the State was instituted by his own casting vote, and there it is to remain. He was opposed to the amendment because—[Laughter.] Because there are Democrats who would have voted against the resolution.

Mr. [illegible] said that the Constitution is silent upon the subject, and that the Legislature has the power to act. He was opposed to the amendment because it was unnecessary. It is objected to the bill that it changes the right of public property. The property which it changes is that which is already in dispute, and which will be settled by the Supreme Court. It is objected to the bill that there shall be no appropriation by the Legislature. The Legislature has not exercised any such power
